The Food Bank for Larimer County has been closely monitoring the Alexander Mountain Fire. While operations have largely continued as normal, the Food Bank is providing support to agency partners who are directly able to assist fire evacuees. These agencies have received beverages, snacks and hygiene items from the Food Bank.

We are incredibly grateful to our community for its outpouring of support and eagerness to help. You never fail to inspire us with your unity and compassion for those in need.

Anyone interested in helping us continue to support our partners can bring donations to the Food Bank's three locations. Hygiene items, including period products, diapers, toothbrushes and toothpaste continue to be the most requested items, especially during these types of crises.

At this time, there hasn't been a need to mobilize a larger response. The Food Bank is continuing to stay up to date with the situation by remaining in close contact with Larimer County Voluntary Organizations Active in Disaster. A coordinated response is always most impactful. Should the situation change, the Food Bank will work with partners to determine the need and respond appropriately.

If you or anyone you know needs food, the Food Bank is available as a resource.

Please note that we can't accept anything home cooked. The Food Bank is also not able to take furniture and clothing, but we know there are nonprofit partners out there that could use these items!*
